What A Man Wants

In business — and many other aspects of life, really — it's often not what you know but who you know that counts. Hence, the importance of making a good impression whenever you meet someone new cannot be stressed enough.

Picture this: Your man is at an important business lunch with a potential client. Everything looks to be going swimmingly well, but the problem is, his sweet-talking arch-rival is also there, trying to impress the same client in an attempt to steal the account from right under his nose. Oh lookie here, now that slimy little snake is even trying to look good by offering to pay for the whole meal! Has all been lost?

Enter Roland Iten's nifty credit card dispenser, the RCD81, to the rescue. As the client watches your man's competitor almost pitifully fumbling to pick out his platinum credit card from his fat leather wallet, in a flash, your man has already whipped out his sleek RCD81 credit card dispenser; and with a simple push of the trigger at the bottom end of the dispenser, the encased credit cards are pushed out in a helpful cascading fashion, enabling him to pick out his favorite black titanium credit card easily and hand it to the snooty waiter — all faster than you can say, "Cheque, please."

But more than just a cool, intelligent and practical gadget that every geek at heart will be happy to show off, with its beautiful engraving, exposed custom-made screws and gold accents, Roland Iten's credit card dispensers are bespoke mechanical complications designed for the true gentleman who enjoys the little luxuries in life and who, more importantly, takes delight in doing things just that little bit differently from everyone else.

As if you need a bigger incentive to get this for him: with such a unique and impressive credit card dispenser, your man would be much more inclined to whip it out... especially when the time comes for him to get you that perfect Christmas present. Here's another tip: Your credit cards — supplementary or otherwise — won't look t
